Program snapshot

Rhythms of West Africa is a 50-minute at-school program using drumming, movement and call-and-response to explore rhythm and community participation.

Learning possibilities

Students can identify pulse and repeated patterns, respond to musical cues and reflect on cooperation in ensemble performance. Cultural and regional context should be named specifically.

Inclusive participation

Provide seated movement, body-percussion and observation roles. Check sound sensitivity needs in advance and ensure participation is invited rather than forced.

Planning prompts

What should students understand or be able to do after the experience? Which claims require verification? How will students reflect without being asked to represent a culture? What access adjustments should be discussed with the provider?
