This resource is invented for software demonstration and retrieval testing. It is not endorsed curriculum guidance, a statement of cultural authority, or a substitute for consultation with relevant communities and official curriculum bodies.

Rhythm investigation

Students listen for pulse, subdivision, repeated patterns and call-and-response. They represent a pattern using accessible notation and perform it accurately as part of an ensemble.

Movement investigation

Students explore how changes in energy, direction, level and formation affect an audience's experience. Movement tasks must allow seated and low-impact alternatives.

Ensemble reflection

Students describe how attention, shared cues and recovery from mistakes contribute to group performance. Assessment should value collaboration as well as accuracy.

Planning prompts

What should students understand or be able to do after the experience? Which claims require verification? How will students reflect without being asked to represent a culture? What access adjustments should be discussed with the provider?
