Context before technique

Students should learn who is sharing an art form, its relevant social setting and any participation guidance before attempting a technique or creative response.

Creative response

Invite students to apply a general artistic element such as contrast, repetition or structure to their own idea. Do not ask them to reproduce sacred, restricted or community-owned designs.

Teacher checklist

Confirm terminology with the presenter, prepare accessible participation options, brief students on respectful questions and allow time for a reflective response after the workshop.

Planning prompts

What should students understand or be able to do after the experience? Which claims require verification? How will students reflect without being asked to represent a culture? What access adjustments should be discussed with the provider?
